DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claims 8, 12 and 16 are objected to because of the following informalities: In line 1 of Claim 8 “claims” should be “claim”.

In claim 12, line 4 “power” should be “powder”.

In claim 16, line 4 “surface” should be “surfaces.”

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. In claim 8 it is not clear to the examiner what limitation the phrase “said at least one having an outer peripheral surface which is press contacted with the other roll to have a depressed portion engaged with the outer peripheral surface of the other roll.” is defining. Appropriate correction and/or clarification is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 1-4 and 11-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by US Patent Number 4,696,725 to Ochiai et al.

Art Unit: 1775

With regard to Claim 1, Ochiai teaches a process for producing a magnetic core which involves compression molding (annealing) and mixing soft magnetic powder (iron) with a solvent and a binder (Col. 3, Ln. 7-32 and Col. 4, Ln. 40-48) to form a slurry mixture. Next this mixture is formed into a film and the solvent is then removed by leaving the film in the air (Col. 4, Ln. 52-68 and Col. 5, Ln. 15-30).

With regard to Claims 2 and 3, the magnetic powder is subjected to treatment with a coupling agent which can be chosen from either a titanium or silane based coupling agent (Col. 4, Ln. 14-48).

With regard to Claim 4, in one embodiment polyethylene is used as a binder to form the magnetic slurry mixture (Col. 3, Ln. 19-20).

With regard to Claim 11, a composite magnetic body is formed by the process of Ochiai (Col. 5, Ln. 28-30).

With regard to Claims 12-14, the process of Ochiai forms a composite magnetic body that has been subjected to annealing (Col. 5, Ln. 3-13) and the magnetic powder is mixed with a binder (coupling agent) (Col. 4, Ln. 14-60).

With regard to Claim 15, the binder in one embodiment of Ochiai is polyethylene (Col. 3, Ln. 19-20).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 1775

7. Claims 5-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Patent Number 4,696,725 to Ochiai as applied to Claim 1 above and in further view of EP 0 854 669 to Yahagi.

Ochiai does not teach that the magnetic core is pressed into a sheet.

Yahagi teaches that a magnetic powder which is subjected to annealing and mixing with a binder and coupling agent is subsequently rolled into a composite sheet (Page 3, Ln. 25-35 and Page 4, Ln. 31-36).

Ochiai does not teach that the magnetic core is formed into a sheet using layering or pressing. However Yahagi teaches that the magnetic film is rolled into sheets (Page 5, Ln. 33-35) using a rolling mill comprising a plurality of rolls (mixing roller and fine roller) and the sheet is pressed between the plurality of rolls (Page 8, Ln. 41-48). A rubber calendaring roller is used to press the sheets (Page 4, Ln. 30-36). Adhesive is also applied to the magnetic sheets using rollers (Page 5, Ln. 36-40).

At the time of the invention one of ordinary skill in the art would have used the process of Yahagi with the expectation of turning the magnetic core taught by Ochiai into magnetic sheets with surface deformable patterns and adhesive layers in order to facilitate adhesion of the magnetic sheet onto the surfaces of the objects to be shielded as recited in Yahagi (Page 5, Ln. 36-40).

8. Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Patent Number 4,696,725 to Ochiai in view of EP 0 854 669 to Yahagi as applied to Claim 9 and in further view of US Patent Number 4,275,113 to Saito.

Art Unit: 1775

9. Claim 16 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Patent Number 4,696,725 to Ochiai as applied to Claim 12 above and in further view of US Patent Number 4,275,113 to Saito.

10. Ochiai and Yahagi do not show a conductive material interposed between the magnetic sheets.

Saito discloses a conductive material interposed between the magnetic sheets because it provides better adhesiveness of the magnetic layer to the carrier sheet (Col. 1, Ln. 1-11 and Col. 11, Ln. 4-17). At the time of the invention one of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to add a conductive layer between the magnetic sheets disclosed by Ochiai in view of Yahagi with the expectation of increasing the adhesion properties of the magnetic sheet.
